STAR CON. MAKES OVER CONTRACT

Bingham Con. Smelter Will Take Up to 1,500 Tons a Month.

GOLD ON THE RESERVATION

E. W. GRIFFITHS LEAVES TO LOOK INTO NEW DISCOVERY.

The management of the Star Consoli-Gated yesterday afternoon closed a contract with the Bingham Consolidated ompany for the output of the Star roine. It is based on a sliding scale overing the various grades of ore which the property produces, and the terms, it is said, are most satisfactory all around. Under its terms the smelter agrees to accept the ores of certain rades up to a maximum of 1,500 tons per month, so the Star company will be enabled to do considerable business under the contract.

This is all the Star Consolidated ompany has been waiting for to get ewn to business. Already the order has been sent to camp to commence leading ore, and the first consignment under the new contract will likely be headed for the valley by tomorrow. The number of men employed at the prop-erty will not, it is understood, be materially increased until the 1st of the coming month, by which time things will have been placed in ship-shape for vigorous campaign of development work, in addition to handling a good tonnage of the mine's second-grade cres, of which there are now in sight anywhere from 40,000 to 70,000 tons.

J. P. Turner, under whose direction the mine will be operated, states that the new contract will not only allow the company to carry on development in a liberal manner, but he is confident it will also allow of rolling a few dol iars into the treasury as the work progresses, and that without figuring toon what developments will show in the way of high grade ore bodies.

NEW TONOPAH COMPANY.

Salt Lake and Nevada Talent Incorporate on a Bonanza.

For the purpose of operating a group of six claims in the Tonopah mining district, six miles from camp, the Tonopah-Crown Point Mining company filed articles of incorporation yesterday. James M. Healey is president; Robert B. Harkness, vice president; F. E. Mc-Gurrin, treasurer; Ed Horne, secretary. Among the remaining directors are Messrs. Key Pittman and J. H. Briggs, two of Tonopaly's well known mining men. The company is capitalized for

A syndicate of local and Tonopah operations, headed by Mr. Healey, have operations, headed by Mr. Healey, have been negotiating for the property for some time past and it finally purchased it outright, thus leaving the company just formed in absolute possession and ownership of the ground, with no debts. While 400,000 shares of the company's stock has been placed in the treasury it is not the intention of the directors to offer it generally for sale, as it is known that the mine will pay its own way from the state. way from the state.

No great amount of development work has yet been done on the ground, but the ledge has been shown to have a width exceeding twelve feet in open cuts run through it. In these are solid bodies of ore that repeated samplings show to carry values ranging from $50 at on up, and when mining has commenced in earnest it is expected that shipments will be regularly made. The proposition is counted as one of the gilt-edged layouts of the famous camp, and the Salt Lakers who joined Mr. Healey in the enterprise are congratulating themselves on being able to Things Hum.

He says the Honerine mill is making

He says the Honerine mill is making the fur fly since the installation of the new Chilean regrinding mill. An average of more than 100 tons of concentrates and crude ore are now going out daily, and there is every prospect that the company's output will soon be much heavier than that.

much heavier than that.

It is understood at camp that Manager J. J. Trenam of the Stockton Gold Mining & Milling company's property has gone east for the purpose of makhas gone east for the purpose of making arrangements for the erection of a mill with which to handle the mine's second-grade ore. The property also boasts good bodies of shipping rock, so the future of the proposition, Mr. Brown says, seems assured.

The Galena King, Black Diamond, and a number of other propositions are being systematically and vigorously developed, and it will not be a great while until the old camp takes on airs

Ohio Owners of American Fork Mine Decide on New Work.

Decide on New Work.

After a season's development at the Dutchman company's property in American Ferk district, it has been decided by the management to size a shaft 500 feet deep and go after the ore bodies in earnest. As the season is pretty well advanced the work will likely not be undertaken till next spring, and the mine in the resulting will be closed down.

Dr. H. J. Holaen, one of the chief owners of the property which is entirely owned in Cleveland, O., with his family has been stending the summer months at the mine, where he has been watching the progress of developments. H. J. Kouise, the supperintendent of the mine, came down from camp Tuesday to arrange for the departure of his guests for Cleveland. He told The Herald's American Fork correspondent the some rich over had been mined during the summer and while the ore had met the cost of extraction, it was realized that the property ought to be doing much bette. On that account it had been decided to sink and get the ore channel below.

During the time that the Dutchman is closed down the company will push with increased vigor work upon the Iron Bog property, leased from Edward Heinz. The terms of the lease provide that the Dutchman company shall do 300 feet of work for an interest in the ground. A tunnel is now in a distance of 150 feet and the lessee has been taking out some good ore. The work will be continued uninterruptedly until the contract has been completed and by that time it is expected that conditions will fully warrant a continuation of operations.

TRACING OUT THE VEIN. De Lamar Claim Owners on Verge of Proving Up Long-Held Theory.

H. Crowell, a mining man of De Lamar, who has spent many years and a great deal of money in the search for a continuation of the ledge which brought millions to the founder of the town, believes he is now on the point of demonstrating his theory that the veins cross the Cedar Wash, about one and one-half miles from town. The Lode teils of Mr. Crowell's work and anticipations as follows:

"Many people have remarked that it would be rather strange if no more big mines should be discovered in this part of the country and among those who held there were others was H. Crowell. He began his search by studying the course and characteristics of the different veins and at last concluded they crossed the Cedar Wash about a mile and a half from De Lamar and there located the Goiden Gate group of claims.

"For ten years he has been propecting the ground, and during that time has done 1300 feet of work in tunnels and shafts and spent close to $15,000.

"Many things have occurred to discourage him, but he has persisted and has now reached a point where success seems assured. For some time he has been drifting to cut a big ledge that crops to the surface and is apparently a continuation of the De Lamar ledge. Under ground the same character and strangement of strata is found as that seen in the De Lamar. The ground is highly mineralized throughout and values ranging as high as $7 are not uncommon. Should he be successful it will mean a great deal for the Camp." Proving Up Long-Held Theory.

DENIES STRIKE STORY.

Superintendent of Summit Placer Now Says No Strike Was Made.

Now Says No Strike Was Made.

The other day The Herald's Provo correspondent sent up a brief report of a strike that had been made in the Summit Placer company's wax mines at Soldier Summit. As authority for the report he used the name of T. P. Rigney, superintendent of the property. Details were larking, and, as S. L. Butler, president and general manager of the company, was then expected from the mines, the communication was held in order that additional particulars might be obtained.

Since the story was printed, Mr. Rigney has sent in a communication in which he declares that the conditions at the mine do not justify the statements made by Mr. Butler. He also declares that the company does not own the mines and makes a great many other statements that appear to conflict with published reports concerning the merits of the property.

erty.

As Mr. Butler had left for the east before Mr. Rigney's communication arrived there was no chance to submit it to him and give him the chance to reply.

The Herald went to headquarters for the news and got a verification of what appeared to be a statement, lacking in detail, from the superintendent.

CAPTAIN STALLINGS' MINE.

Salt Laker Equipping Fine Property Adjoining the Lincoln.

Captain J. H. Stallings, who secured a number of claims adjoining the Lincoln, at Pearl, has his hoist on the ground. This hoist will carry the work down 1,500 feet and is now equipped with a 1,200-foot cable. The boiler and hoist are of 160-horse power each, says the Boise Statesman.

of the property which is called the South Lincoln.

It is the intention to make the shaft with three compartments. It will be located within about 400 feet of the proposed vertical shaft for the Lincoln. Underground the two will be connected, promoting good ventilation and affording an additional mode of egress from each mine, thus contributing to the safety of the miners.

James Bond, an old time miner, who returned this afternoon from the district, declares the strike to be the greatest he has ever seen. He says that he helped to measure the ore body on Chapet and that there are seventy-five feet of ore running 20 per cent copper and $18 in gold per ton.
